Tory image tarnished before election

Image problem. Redford admitted accusations of Tory entitlement have gone from irritant to image problem

In recent weeks, the opposition parties have gleefully forced Premier Alison Redford time and again to rise in the house to speak to a spreading stain of scandals with an election expected to be called in days or weeks.

One imbroglio involves Gary Mar, Redford's former rival for the Progressive Conservative party leadership and currently the Hong Kong-based Asia trade envoy.

Redford suspended Mar without pay last week after learning he may have tacitly offered to open doors in Asia for benefactors who attended a $400-a-plate dinner to help him pay off campaign debts.

The premier has also had to do damage control this week when it was revealed an all-party legislature committee was paying politicians thousands of dollars to sit on a panel that hasn't met in years.

On Monday, Redford froze the committee pay for all her members pending a review.

NDP critic Rachel Notley wondered if Redford is now facing some in-house discord.

"I suspect there may be a problem with how much support she's got in her caucus right now," said Notley.

Redford is dealing with fallout on other issues, including a recent report by the Health Quality Council.

The council said a struggling provincial health-care system hit the ditch five years ago when the province centralized services. The result, said the report, was more patient suffering and doctors getting punished and ostracized by their bosses for speaking out.

Speaking on a Calgary open-line radio show earlier Thursday, Redford admitted that accusations of Tory entitlement after 40 years in power have gone from irritant to image problem.

Police fear two incidents in which a minor approached an elderly woman seeking a kiss may be connected.

A woman in her 60s alleges on March 9 a young male on a bike made inappropriate comments to her. This comes on the heels of a similar incident five days prior that saw possibly the same youngster approach a 78-year-old woman walking along Penworth Place Southeast and attempt to kiss her.

The suspect is believed to be between the ages of 13-17, based on witness accounts. METRO

Brewery boss ready to retire

Beer lovers are raising a pint in honour of longtime Big Rock boss Ed McNally, who announced he's retiring Thursday.

Building the local brewery from the ground up after it was founded in 1985, McNally proved "instrumental" in its success and "his name and legacy will always be synonymous with the Big Rock brand," said a release from the company.

Robert Sartor, who served as CEO for the Forzani Group for eight years before it was bought by Canadian Tire, will come on as CEO. McNally will remain chairman of the Big Rock board. METRO

More students could solve nursing crunch

Education. University officials point out issues standing in way of boosting enrolment at MRU, U of C

JEREMY NOLAIS

Alberta health officials have looked out of province — even out of country — to find hospital workers, but some university officials believe allowing more students into local classrooms would provide a much-needed injection of staff.

Calgary's South Health Campus will begin opening in phases later this year.

Officials aim to have 2,400 staff working on site by late-2013.

Media reports indicate that, to fill these positions, Alberta Health Services has actively attempted to draw graduates from Saskatchewan and even overseas in the United Kingdom.

But Mount Royal University president David Docherty was quick to point out that his institution consistently turns away hundreds of nursing-program applicants annually simply because provincial grant funding isn't there to keep up with demand.

"Universities are like the health-care system — we can always use more money," he said. "We need more money if we want to add more spaces."

Kim Capstick, spokesperson for the provincial advanced education and technology ministry, said her group works closely with the health-care sector to determine graduation targets, which she says are currently being met.

Capstick added that more than $2.2 billion in operating grants are being delivered to post-secondary institutions in the province annually, which she believes is "considerably higher" than most other provinces.

"It's up to institutions to determine how they spend that money," Capstick said.

University of Calgary nursing dean Dianne Tapp, meanwhile, said she believes government funding is adequate but finding students clinical placements is

Students 'stoked' on suite-safety project

City proposal. Pilot project will see co-ordinated inspections for safety and proper zoning

katie.turner@metronews.ca

University groups say a proposed city pilot project that would change the approach to secondary-suite safety enforcement would help out thousands of students.

City administration is proposing council approve the Suite Safety Approach, which would see co-ordinated inspections for both safety and for proper zoning.

If given the thumbs-up by council, the pilot would see a sample group of 50 suites that had been reported get inspected by city and fire officials.

"In the past, (city business units have) worked somewhat independently, working on our own issues with regards to secondary suites," said Kevin Griffiths, chief building official for the City of Calgary.

Griffiths said that if the Student representatives say they are encouraged by a proposed pilot project that could increase safety for many university students, like those at Mount Royal University, who live in illegal suites. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO CALGARY pilot suites have proper zoning, then the homeowner will have the opportunity to convert the suite to bring them to a safe standard.

"The fact that council has begun to act responsibly for the safety of Calgarians and the safety of students — we're stoked about it," said

Matt McMillan, VP external of the University of Calgary Students' Union.

Michelle Dennis of the Mount Royal University Student's Union said affordable and safe housing is a major issue for students.

"This is the first step towards something that's really needed," she said.

Pilot project

- The city receives about 1,000 complaints annually of illegal secondary suites.
- The pilot project would take place between May 2012 and April 2013.

CALGARIANS TOO BUSY TO GET DOWN AND DIRTY IN THE SHOWER

than any other province in Canada.

Ignoring the fact that it's super creepy that someone is going around asking people if they are being intimate in the shower, I'm not surprised that our province is spending less romantic time with our partners in the shower than the rest of the country.

Sure, our warm winter means that fewer of us were looking to warm up with someone else in the shower, but I think it's more of an issue of time than it is cleanliness and warmth.

If there is one thing I know about Calgary, it's that we're a busy group of people. Besides often being stuck on public transportation or on our roadways, a lot of Calgarians are busy raising their families, holding down any number of jobs or, like me, getting up early to snag a coveted seat on the Ship and Anchor patio.

On top of the day-to-day stuff, there's lots keeping us busy in and around the city. Most people I know head to the mountains for the weekend.

And while it's been a while since I've gone camping, I'm guessing the campground showers don't exactly elicit intimate feelings towards your partner.

Here in the city, many Calgarians have devoted their lives to following our numerous sports franchises. Between the Flames, Stampede, Hitmen and Roughnecks, there are lots of people who never miss a game, and likely don't have time to find someone to date, let alone share a shower with them.

Who has the time for that?

Much like Marilyn Monroe and James Dean, our city council is undoubtedly home to a handful of sex icons, but since we tend not to make our politicians into celebrities (unless they do it themselves) we're not going to hear about the good stuff. If asked, I'm just going to go ahead and assume that at least one or two of them would have answered positively.

Of course, we can't talk about showering without acknowledging the people who took a couple of months off from being clean all together.

The survey was taken in the middle of the Occupy Calgary movement, which on top of being confusing and rather pointless, likely put a big dent in our bathing-together numbers.

We might not be that busy getting busy in the shower, but that doesn't mean we're not having fun in that department. Just ask all the Stampede babies.

East Village: Past, present and future

'Drop-In' confidence in village plans

Building a community. Roughly 10,000 people will move into the East Village in condos neighbouring the Drop-In Centre

katie.turner@metronews.ca

During her 16 years with the Calgary Rehab and Drop-In Centre, Debbie Newman, the shelter's executive director, has seen the community go from a place known for drug dealers and prostitutes to a soon-to-be trendy inner-city neighbourhood.

Much like the changes in the East Village, the relationship between the DI, the city and developers has evolved over the years.

"If you go back through Alberta history, the first squatters and homeless people were right in this vicinity near the Simmons Building," she said. "This goes back probably 100 years ago."

Newman says the DI has been kept abreast of redevelopment plans but, in the past, they felt threatened, even taking legal action against the city around four years ago.

"We discovered through the drawings that access to our building was completely cut off," she said. The issue was resolved out of court and Newman says the relationship has since improved.

"I don't think there's any intent from the Calgary Municipal Land Corporation (CMLC) to even suggest that we move elsewhere."

Michael Brown, president and CEO of the CMLC, says the DI is not seen as a blight but rather an opportunity to diversify the community.

"If we took the approach and said, 'You guys have to move somewhere else,' that's not a healthy approach from a community point of view," he said. "We can work with them."

Newman says she hopes the homeless population can become part of the fabric of the community. "I have to be optimistic."

Calgary's newest, oldest community has a long history

Branding the East Village as the newest, oldest neighbourhood in Calgary could not be more true to fact.

Local historian Harry Sanders says what is now known as the East Village was within Calgary's original corporate boundaries and the town site as laid out in 1884.

Sanders says in the early years there were houses, businesses and light industry, but over time it became a less desirable place to live.

"In about 1940, the medical officer of health characterized it as part of skid row."

Community growing up fast, association says

It's anticipated that it will be 10 to 15 years before the East Village looks like this rendering. CONTRIBUTED

With thousands of new residents expected to populate the East Village in the coming years, the area is growing up fast, say officials.

What was once the East Village Action Committee has morphed into the East Village Neighbourhood Association earlier this month — a move that highlights the progress in the area, says chairman Bill Nairn.

Nairn says they decided to form a neighbourhood association before the more than 10,000 projected new residents move into the area.

"We want to form a grassroots community before everyone moves in," he said, adding they intend to encourage membership with all new residents.

Area Ald. Druh Farrell said interest in the East Village has gone beyond expectations, even before the sales centre opens its doors on March 24.

"They had a broker event and they expected about 40 or 50 and I think about 300 came," she said.

Farrell said the Calgary Rehab and Drop-In Centre will be found alongside a new central public library and the National Music Centre — all of which will set the East Village apart.

"We made a concerted effort when looking at the type of customer or people that would want to buy in the East Village," she said. "They're seeking that diversity." KATIE TURNER/METRO

Population about to boom

- Condo sales are beginning on 600 units that will be built in two mixed-use residential properties.
- It's estimated the population in the East Village will go from about 1,040 to 11,500.
- The first new residents are expected in January 2014.

Transit simulator to train city's future drivers

C-Train operators could soon be receiving real-life training in a controlled environment.

Calgary Transit is in the process of reviewing requests for proposals from seven companies and hopes to make a decision about purchasing training LRT simulator by month's end.

Currently, C-Train operators spend about 20 days in training, both in the classroom and on the line.

"The simulator gives us the chance to train the operators without impacting on revenue service," said manager of safety and security with Calgary Transit Stephen Hansen.

Hansen said one of the benefits of using a simulator would be the ability to present real-life scenarios, such as a pedestrian on the tracks, in a controlled environment.

"Certainly, we're hoping the simulator will help from a safety standpoint."

gated Transit Union Mike Mahar said other than the cost of purchasing the simulator, he can't see any downside to the idea.

"I've actually used some of them before and I was quite impressed," he said. "There's nothing like the real application but you can get a lot of hours in on the simulator that you can't get in on the actual train."

Once a simulator is selected, Hansen said it will likely take a year before the machine is in operation. Calgary Transit was unable to disclose their budget for the simulator before negotiations are complete.

New rules possible for helicopter pilots

Alberta is looking at changing its rules to ensure all helicopter pilots it hires out wear helmets and shoulder-harness seatbelts.

Frank Oberle, the province's sustainable resources minister, says he's going to look at those changes following the death last year of a helicopter pilot fighting the Slave Lake fire.

Oberle notes he can't order up mandatory helmets and seatbelts for helicopters because that's the jurisdiction of the federal government. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Humane Society avoids post-Christmas admission surge

Responsibility. City bylaw boss believes messaging around pet ownership is finally sinking in

jeremy.nola@metronews.ca

There's vacancy at the Calgary Humane Society, and that's a good thing as far as officials are concerned.

Year-over-year data suggests the area shelter has seen a 15 to 20 per cent reduction in the number of animals awaiting adoption so far in 2012.

Generally, the months following Christmas are a busy time for area shelters, as gift-wrapped pets quickly prove to be too much to handle for inexperienced owners.

"Not giving pets as gifts has been a big message of ours for the past few years," said humane society spokesperson Christy Thompson. "It's a family decision, it shouldn't be a surprise because it's a huge responsibility."

City bylaw boss Bill Bruce, who has aggressively steered local pet-licensing programs and is being called on by other municipalities marveling at Calgary's success, says working with the community has been key.

"People are starting to realize what it takes to properly care for an animal," he said. "It's something you shouldn't take lightly."

TESTIMONIAL - Enjoyable Experience
"This was my 'first cleanse', and I can truly say it has been an enjoyable experience. I followed the directions, and made changes in my diet. The first few days, I began to notice some changes in my energy levels and 'waste elimination'. I also could tell the products were working, as my skin had mild breakouts. Towards the end of the program, the breakouts had cleared up, I was more regular in waste elimination, and I lost 7 pounds." - 2011-10-04

CleanseSMART Advanced Total Body Cleanse

TESTIMONIAL - Thank you so much! "My fiancée and I had always thought that we were relatively healthy at 47 years of age and had fairly decent eating habits in that we were conscious of what we put into our bodies - fresh fruit and veggies, as little processed meats, white flour, sugar, salt, etc. but over the last 6 months or so we were beginning to feel sluggish and that our age was finally catching up to us - very rapidly. We searched the internet and narrowed our search to CleanseSMART's 30 day cleanse. We are very happy to report that after only five days both of us felt an amazing change in our bodies - lighter, healthier and more energized! Thank you so very much for your expertise in formulating this cleanse." - 2008-01-16

Violation. Report finds privacy at risk when phones lost in public

If you've ever wondered what would happen if you lost your phone in public, a study conducted by an Ottawa-based security researcher suggests there's one thing you can almost surely count on — a complete violation of your privacy.

And the odds of getting your phone back are basically a coin toss, according to the report by Scott Wright of Security Perspectives Inc., and the security software company Symantec.

Wright "accidentally" dropped cellphones throughout his hometown and four major U.S. cities as part of his experiment. Each phone was left unlocked and the "owner's" contact information was easily accessible.

Of the 50 phones he left in Los Angeles, New York, Ottawa, San Francisco and Washington D.C. only 25 were picked up by someone who made an attempt to return the device.

But Wright was watching remotely as 96 per cent of the "lost" smartphones were accessed, as the finders poked through apps labelled with names such as online

Findings

- Overall, 89 per cent of the 50 phones had personal apps accessed. And 83 per cent had corporate apps and information clicked on.
- The photo app was tried most frequently, 72 per cent of the time. It was followed by social networking and personal email apps (60 per cent), a saved passwords app (57 per cent), the remote admin app (49 per cent), the corporate email app (45 per cent) and the online banking app (43 per cent).

Lung disease to cost $24.1B

A new forecast from the Conference Board of Canada predicts the economic burden of three chronic lung diseases will be $24.1 billion in the year 2030.

But it suggests that new strategies to reduce risk factors could reduce this amount by an estimated $1.5 billion. These include reducing smoking rates and second-hand smoke exposure. THE CANADIAN PRESS

One year, but no celebration

Syria. Strife getting worse a year after uprising began

Thousands of Syrians rallied Thursday in Damascus in a display of loyalty to President Bashar Assad, waving flags under a slate grey sky to protest the anniversary of a rebellion that the government says is driven by terrorists, gangsters and extremists.

Outside the Syrian capital, however, tanks and snipers besieged opposition areas, including the southern city of Daraa, where the uprising began a year ago, touched off by the arrest of a group of youths who scrawled anti-regime graffiti on a wall.

One year into the Syrian revolt, the fight to oust Assad is cascading toward civil war with more than 8,000 killed and no end in sight to the bloodshed. Worst-case scenarios are playing out in a country where many remain shackled by corruption, a suffocating security apparatus and a family dictatorship that rules more than 22 million people.

"We know that this is a criminal regime, but we didn't

Hundreds of Syrian refugees, who fled the violence in their country, stage a protest against the regime and its leader Bashar Assad in Reyhanli, Turkey, Thursday. BURHAN OZBILICI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS expect it to reach this amount of killing," Amer Mattar, a 26-year-old activist, told The Associated Press from Jordan, where he fled to safety after being arrested twice in Syria.

Despite widening international condemnation and biting sanctions, Assad's regime has remained intact and intelligence analysts say the rebels have yet to pose a serious challenge to his powerful military.

Assad also has retained the support of many in Syria's business classes and minority communities, who worry they would lose protections under a new regime. Still others harbour an understandable fear of the unknown, given the rampant divisions within the opposition. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the dictators' playlists

According to the Guardian newspaper, leaked emails revealed Syrian dictator Bashar Al-Assad was busy adding to his iTunes collection while his country lurched into civil war. Here's a look at what he, and other famous tyrants, have listened to.

• Bashar Al-Assad

The Syrian strongman seems to have a preference for the R&B side of pop: Chris Brown and Leona Lewis are among his recent purchases. Clearly a hopeless romantic, he sent his wife, Asma, the song God Gave Me You by country music star Blake Shelton.

• Kim Jong-il

The late autocrat of North Korea had a weakness for English singer-guitarist Eric Clapton. A 2007 WikiLeaks cable advised the U.S. government that arranging a concert would "be an opportunity to build goodwill."

• Osama Bin Laden

Outwardly a strict Muslim, his alleged ex-lover Kola Boof claims the al-Qaida despot had a louder side: "He would become this devout party boy who wanted to hear Van Halen or some B-52s."

• Ramzan Kadyrov

The Chechen leader has been accused of torture and murder, but for his birthday last October, Kadyrov flew in British singer Seal to perform his favourite song, Kiss from a Rose. Seal was criticized by human rights groups.

• Moammar Gadhafi

Music lover Gadhafi hired Lionel Richie to play at his 2006 Concert for Peace in Libya, and was star-struck when he asked for the singer's autograph.

U.S. REAL ESTATE HAS BOTTOMED OUT!

7 Deadliest Mistakes All Canadians Make When Buying U.S. Real Estate

Fellow Canadians - a new video series has just recently been released which reveals the 7 costly mistakes that ALL Canadians make when buying U.S. real estate, and a 23 step system that can help you prevent these common mistakes in order to protect your investment.

This video series clearly shows how a typical Canadian loses an average of $30,000 when buying U.S. real estate. The fact of the matter is that the U.S. is a foreign country with an entirely different tax system that the CRA frowns upon - worse yet - with regulations written against foreigners, such as the famous "world estate tax".

Don't dare google "U.S. Real Estate" until you watch and learn the proven methods.

This video series exposes the 7 deadliest mistakes that cost Canadians tens of thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes are entirely preventable. In answer to these issues, Canada's only active U.S. real estate expert - Steve Martel - has prepared a free video series entitled "Buying U.S. Real Estate The Proven Way".

Coke's campaign for Arctic succeeds

While the design of the can may have caused a bit of a backlash, Arctic research is the winner.

About six months ago, Coca-Cola launched a campaign called Arctic Home with the goal of raising a total of $4 million for Arctic research — $2 million over four years from Coke, $1 million from North Americans and $1 million more from Coke in matching donations.

The campaign's first phase ended Thursday, and consumers have responded, said Coke spokesperson Dave Moran.

"Has it been the most successful ... campaign we've ever done? Yes," said Moran.

Moran didn't have the final numbers, but said as of last week the campaign was close to reaching its goal.

"And keep in mind, this is only the first year (of a five-year campaign)," he said.

Geoff York, polar bear biologist with the World Wildlife Fund's Global Arctic program, said the money means more research in remote northern areas.

It also means more community outreach with the Inuit and other local municipalities that either own or steward the land.

"It gives us the chance to fill in the knowledge gap," said York, adding due to lack of supply and extreme weather, it's unknown how many polar bears and other wildlife live in the extreme northern reaches.

Officer ticketed after crashing car

A Vancouver police official says he's accepting full responsibility for crashing his car while talking on his cellphone.

Police say Deputy Chief Warren Lemcke was making a work-related phone call when he collided with a vehicle that came to an abrupt stop ahead of him on Highway 99.

The couple in the car were not hurt, and police who arrived on the scene ticketed the officer for driving without due care and attention.

Lemcke says there's "no excuse" for his mistake, and he urges other drivers to stay focused while on the road.

Defence cuts. Harper's Arctic ship plan should be sunk, says senator

The coming March 29 budget is expected to see $19.8 billion set aside for the military, a seven per cent decrease compared with last year's defence spending plan, according to preliminary federal estimates.

And those forecasts do not reflect the five or 10 per cent reductions the Conservatives have asked all federal departments to deliver.

Liberal Sen. Colin Kenny said if the Harper government wants to make appropriate defence cuts it should look at its pet project of Arctic Offshore Patrol Ships.

The $4.3-billion program was established to build six to eight light naval icebreakers — slated to be the first military vessels constructed in Halifax under the recently announced national ship-building plan.

Expected to be in the range of 6,000 tonnes each, the ships when completed around 2014-15 will operate in the Arctic for up to eight months a year.

Weird science. Study reveals that sex-deprived male fruit flies flock to the booze

Guys, when your sweetheart says "No thanks" to sex, do you knock back a few stiff drinks to feel better? Turns out fruit flies do pretty much the same thing.

That's the word from a new study that may explain why both species react that way.

In Friday's issue of the journal Science, researchers propose a biological explanation for why "Not tonight, dear" may lead to "Gimme another beer." If it proves true in people, it may help scientists find new medications to fight alcoholism.

In that case, we can thank thousands of frustrated flies.

One by one, these eager Lotharios were put into a container with a female that had just mated. So she was really, really not interested in doing it again anytime soon. She would run away. She would kick the male. She would stick out her egg-laying organ to hold him at bay.

The male flies went through three hour-long sessions of this every day for four days, enough rejection to discourage them from trying any more.

After that experience, rejected flies were put in vials and given a choice of regular food or alcohol-laced food. They consistently went for the alcohol more than did the male flies that had just mated. In fact, they evidently got drunk.

Some rejected males were moved to a different environment, where groups of guys mingled with receptive females. After the guys had sex, their yen for alcohol declined.

The researchers also paired thousands of other male flies with dead virgin females, so that they didn't experience rejection but didn't have sex either. They still drank alcohol.

What's going on here?

The researchers did other work that implicates a substance in the fly brain called NPF. They theorize that pleasurable activities like having sex boost the activity of brain circuits that use NPF, and that feels good. If a fly is denied sex, the system goes into deficit, driving the fly to seek other rewarding activities such as drinking alcohol.

"I think it's a pretty good bet that it will translate to humans," said Ulrike Heberlein of the University of California, San Francisco, who led the research. If so, "one can say we could now understand why a negative experience, such as a sexual rejection, could drive somebody to drink."

SETH PERLMAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Human applications?

Further research into NPF brain circuitry could shed light on the biology of alcohol abuse and possibly point to treatments someday, said Troy Zars of the University of Missouri in Columbia, who didn't participate in the new work.

• Fruit flies are a favourite lab animal in part because scientists have exquisite control over their biology. Here, the researchers were able to alter brain function to zero in on NPF's role.

- Whatever the relevance to humans, the work already pays off when head researcher Ulrike Heberlein meets people at parties.
- "It makes for wonderful conversation," she said. "When you tell them this story, they just really can't believe it."

Fans allegedly murdered. 75 charged in Egypt's post-game soccer riots

Egypt's top prosecutor on Thursday charged 75 people in connection with a deadly soccer riot last month in the Mediterranean city of Port Said in which authorities said fans were thrown to their death off the stadium walls and others killed by explosives as they tried to flee.

Scores of fans face murder charges and nine police officers were accused of complicity in murder, in the Feb. 1 riot that left at least 74 people dead. It was the world's worst soccer-related disaster in 15 years.

The riot began minutes after the final whistle in a league game between Cairo club al-Ahly and al-Masry of Port Said. The home side won 3-1, but its fans set upon the rival supporters in a killing frenzy that witnesses said lasted 30 minutes. Many witnesses claimed that policemen at the venue did nothing to stop the bloodshed.

The riot shocked soccer-crazy Egypt, deepening the sense of uncertainty felt by many as their nation continues to be roiled by unrest.

Age of girl who sent a random text saying: "I hid the body ... Now what?" The recipient was a police detective.

A northwest Arkansas teenager thought it would be funny to text a random phone number saying she hid a body, but the joke backfired.

Of all the local phone numbers she could have chosen, the 15-year-old Rogers girl picked one that belonged to a police detective. Police found the girl's address by tracing her cellphone number.

The prank? To text: "I hid the body ... Now what?" to a random phone number. The teen said she got the idea for the prank from a website.

Police didn't find the prank funny and say it tied up some of the department's resources. The girl was released with a warning.

$16.8-million fraud

Amish community swindled by one of its own

An Ohio man has admitted defrauding fellow Amish in 29 states out of nearly $17 million.

Monroe L. Beachy, 77, changed his plea to guilty Thursday in U.S. federal court.

The judge ordered a pre-sentence report and scheduled sentencing for

May 24. A one-count mail-fraud indictment returned last year charged Beachy with promising investors safe securities, but instead moving money to riskier investments.

The indictment says nearly 2,700 people and entities, including an Amish community loan fund, lost about $16.8 million since 2006.

Beachy's company has filed for bankruptcy protection.

The charge carries a maximum 20-year sentence.

Social media. U.S. considers laws governing digital estates after death

When Karen Williams' son died in a motorcycle crash, the U.S. woman turned to his Facebook account in hopes of learning more about him.

Williams found his password and emailed the company, asking administrators to maintain 22-year-old Loren Williams' account so she could look through his posts and comments by his friends. But within two hours, she said, Facebook changed the password, blocking her efforts.

Now lawmakers and attorneys in at least two U.S. states are considering proposals that would require Facebook and other social networks to grant access to loved ones when a family member dies, essentially making the site contents part of a person's digital estate.

The issue is increasingly important as people record more online and more disputes break out over that material.

Under Facebook's current policy, deaths can be reported in an online form. When the site learns of a death, it puts that person's account in a memorialized state. Certain information is removed, and privacy is restricted to friends only. The profile and wall are left up so friends and loved ones can make posts in remembrance.

Facebook will provide the estate of the deceased with a download of the account data "if prior consent is obtained from or decreed by the deceased or mandated by law."

If a close relative asks that a profile be removed, Facebook will honour that request, too. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Improvements due for rural wireless coverage

Canadians living in rural areas will have better cellphone reception once a federal auction of radio waves takes place, but telecom analysts say it could take years before the improved service is launched.

Ottawa has moved to level the wireless playing field by placing limits on the coming wireless spectrum auction and lifting foreign-investment limits on small telecom firms in an effort to boost competition.

Companies that are using two blocks of spectrum — radio waves over which cellphone networks travel — will have to provide wireless services to 90 per cent of their coverage areas within five years, and to 97 per cent of their coverage areas within seven years.

The caps will limit how much spectrum each company can bid for. The changes to the auction rules will let at least four companies obtain spectrum in each of Canada's 14 licence areas.

Tablet mania. Sales begin Friday for latest version of Apple's iPad

The customary storefront crowds are expected to gather as Apple's latest iPad goes on sale Friday. Long lines are likely even though customers could have ordered the new tablet computer ahead of time for first-day home delivery.

The third version of Apple's iPad will be available in Canada, the U.S. and nine other countries beginning at 8 a.m. local time.

The new model comes with a faster processor and a much sharper screen. It also boasts an improved camera, similar to that of the latest iPhone.

For many customers, visiting a store in person, instead of having one shipped, offers consumers a chance to mingle with die-hard Apple fans.

Two years after the debut of the first iPad, the device's launch has become the second-biggest "gadget event" of the year, after the annual iPhone release.

A year ago, thousands lined up outside the flagship Apple store on New York's Fifth Avenue. The device sold out on launch day, even though it didn't go on sale until 5 p.m.

For some customers, standing in line will offer the only chance to get a new iPad on Friday. Apple quickly ran out of supplies it set aside for advance orders. The company was telling customers Thursday to expect a two- to three-week wait for orders placed through its online stores.

Stock soars

Apple's stock touched $600 for the first time on Thursday, the day before the company's latest iPad goes on sale.

- The stock reached $600.01 just after the market opened and was up $3.76 at $593.34 after the half-hour of trading.
- Apple is the world's most valuable company, with a market capitalization of nearly $555 billion.
- It topped $500 billion for the first time in late February, a market value peak where few companies have ventured.

JANN ARDEN GETS SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT

THE LIST
Neil Morton
Metro

1 Jann Arden kicked off train: The singer via @jannarden to VIA Rail after they asked her to disembark for having her dog Midi with her in a carrier (which is against VIA's rules). Some agreed with Arden and thought she was being a Good Mother; others said she was being Inconsiderate to those with allergies. It's a doggone world.

2 Bachelor finale: Winemaker Ben did what every female on the face of the planet didn't want him to do on the finale — pick evil Courtney over girl-next-door Lindzi. Now you know what it's like, ladies, when you pick the "bad boys" to date over the nice ones. Oh, right, you marry them. Ask my wife. (I'm nice now. She converted me.)

3 Manteresting.com: It's the alpha-male version of the enormously successful online social-media site Pinterest, and goes by the tagline "Interesting. Man. Things." So far it's a lot of pics of chicks in bikinis, professional athletes, gadgets and BBQ stuff. In other words, the ultimate mancave bookmarking site.

4 Robert Herjavec: CBC's Dragons' Den is losing one of its star dragons, as the affable Herjavec has decided not to return next season after six years with the show. The search for a new dragon is underway. I once invested 50 cents in a lemonade stand in Grade 2 and it turned a $5 profit in one day. Perfect candidate.

5 Biebnapping: A life-sized cutout of the Biebs was "kidnapped" at a Booster Juice in Winnipeg, a place Bieber visited last year. The owner is offering a $25 Booster Juice, gift card as a reward for whoever returns it undamaged. I don't know what's worse — that the life-size cutout was stolen, or that this actually made the news.

6 House-party-gone-viral a bust: Calgary high school student Hunter Mills tweeted about his buddy Kris Morrey's upcoming party using the hashtag #project-kris, a play on the film Project X, which features a huge house party. The tweet went viral, trending around the globe. Mills wisely chose a new location for the weekend party, a night club. So there was no Animal House. And Morrey is not grounded forever.

7 @rentagrandmacom: It sounds like a parody account but it's actually the Twitter handle for Rentagrandma.com, a U.S. service that allows you to hire a grandma to babysit your kids instead of a teenager. Child care is vital to Mom and Dad when they're out on date night, and who's more responsible than a Grandma, right? Grandpa better not show up and raid the liquor cabinet, though.

8 Chris Kaman's Bobcat: The NBA centre for the New Orleans Hornets tweeted "Guess who we r playing tonight?!" with a picture of him holding a dead bobcat in his driveway this week before a game against the Charlotte Bobcats. Two things Kaman has since heard: One, that's some mighty weird trash talk, and, two, your Hornets went out and lost to the Bobcats.

They say nice guys finish last. Perhaps it applies to girls, too? HANDOUT

Fun film isn't slacking

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Jeff, Who Lives at Home. Duplass Brothers product has an indie sensibility

Richard: Mark, I'm not sure how to describe this movie. It's sort of a comedy, kind of a drama and a bit of a character study and yet it isn't really any of those things. The Duplass Brothers, best known for the indie films, have mixed and matched tones and come up with something that is likeable despite the strange premise and characters.

Mark: It's not quite a comedy, but it's so likeable that it feels like one. The movie is small, and short, and has the charms of a shaggy-dog tale. What the movie really has going for it is its casting. All four leads — Jason Segel, Ed Helms, Judy Greer, and Susan Sarandon, do stellar, unglamorous work, and I can't imagine the movie without them. I thought the movie might be 80 minutes of slacker jokes, but it has something more on its mind — something at once more everyday and more cosmic.

RC: It is deeply connected to its characters and the relationships that bind them and for me that is the thing that really sells the movie. Most of the characters are edgy — except for Susan Sarandon's world-weary single mom and her free spirited co-worker played by Rae Dawn Chong — but because there's no cynicism here they become real people that you care about. Quite a feat in 85 minutes.

MB: I also liked the way that some details that seem irrelevant in the first part of the film actually play out by its finish — at first I thought these details were random time-killers, but by the end, they all add to the film's closure. But Richard, with all of the movie's modesty, fragility and scale, did you not feel that if the film's location were moved from Baton Rouge to Regina, we could have been watching a Canadian film?

RC: It exists at the intersection of indie and mainstream film, which I believe is located in Vancouver these days, nicely blending the DIY sensibility of the directors with the appeal of the A-list-y cast. We specialize in making small, character-driven movies and that's exactly what this one is. What it has, that Canadian films don't is the marketing push of Paramount behind it.

MB: Yes, it seemed an odd film to open wide, but somebody really believes in it, and that's nice to see. Nice is a good word for this film. It's not going to rock anyone's world, but it's a tasty little truffle in the banquet of cinema.

The big-screen comic adaptation of '80s TV hit 21 Jump Street is anything but consistent. But oddly enough, it still sort of works. Led by Superbad-star Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum, this adventure of two bumbling cops reliving high school as undercover narcs combines slapstick with shootouts in what amounts to one extravagant but groundless gagfest. 21 Jump Street's laughs play broad and immodestly bold and it's forgettable fun.

In Friends with Kids, a platonic couple are forced to examine the true nature of their relationship after they decide to have a child with no strings attached. The premise sounds familiar but Friends with Kids takes a tired idea in a tired genre and breathes some new life into it. Writer/director/star Jennifer Westfeldt has assembled a great cast, but as charming as they make the first hour, the film suffers from a predictable ending.

Aiming for gentle charm and arriving at mercilessly manufactured whimsy, Salmon Fishing in the Yemen is an embarrassment to its talented stars Ewan McGregor and Emily Blunt and par for the course for pseudo-prestige director Lasse Hallström. Hallström's plodding, tonally uneven direction makes matters even worse — soft-focus romance and terrorist plots are treated with a lazy, glossy attitude.

Roots, Rock, Reggae on display

Festival. From Bob Marley to Big Star, '70s music playing again in varied SXSW documentaries

Whether reggae, soft rock, hardcore punk or power pop, the music of the '70s is playing again at South By Southwest.

Several of the many music documentaries at this year's SXSW revisit acts from the decade, a time often skipped over in pop culture history. But for that same reason, the '70s left a number of stories ripe for rediscovery or more thorough examination.

Put under the documentary lens is the beloved legend Bob Marley (Marley), the forgotten songwriting talent Paul Williams (Paul Williams Still Alive), the cult band that proved curiously resistant to the mainstream Big Star (Big Star: Nothing Can Hurt Me), the radical punk of Bad Brains (Bad Brains: Band in DC) and the curious story of rocker Rodriguez (Search for Sugar Man).

The films are among the

highlights of SXSW's robust music documentaries, which essentially make up the connective tissue between the film and music components of the annual Austin festival. Many of them are grouped under their own music documentaries category, 24 Beats Per Second.

Marley, which will be released April 20, takes a linear, biographic approach that takes nearly 2 1/2 hours to tell the life story of Marley through friends and family.

It might be called the "roots rock reggae" take on a subject often shrouded in iconography and myth.

"For all these years, I've seen so many things on Bob and I always felt like: 'Who are these people talking about Bob and writing about Bob?" says Ziggy Marley, the eldest son of the Jamaican legend.

The film is a long in-the-works project authorized by the Marley family (Ziggy is an executive producer) that originally had Martin Scorsese signed up to direct.

Then Jonathan Demme, whose music documentaries include Stop Making Sense and Neil Young: Heart of Gold, came aboard and made a version. He left in 2009 after what he called "profound creative differences."

Director Kevin Macdonald has made a number of documentaries, himself, including 2003's Touching the Void, but it was his fiction film The Last King of Scotland that led him to Marley. While shooting in Uganda, he saw that Marley's popularity reached even to remote African slums.

He hopes that "Marley" is the definitive documentary of the musician, and that it being "authorized" doesn't detract from its clarity.

"You can't worry about that if you're trying to be impartial, if you're trying to be honest," says Macdonald of collaborating with the Marleys.

Jennifer Lawrence remains calm in the face of fame

The Hunger Games. Star of the next big teen franchise gets over her fear of being known only as Katniss Everdeen

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The Hunger Games has changed Jennifer Lawrence's life in at least one way: she's armed now. "I mean, I still have arrows in my car," Lawrence admits. (Her character in the film, Katniss Everdeen, is a talented bow-hunter, so Lawrence has had to master archery.)

"I didn't realize that until two of my friends were getting into the back seat of my car and they were like, 'Why do you have spears back here?'"

"In case I get pulled over!" Lawrence made such an impression as Ree Dolly in the critically acclaimed Winter's Bone — playing a hard-luck teen who must provide for her impoverished family — that producers of the Hunger Games immediately thought of her for Katniss, a hard-luck teen who must provide for her impoverished family. Heck, both characters even hunt squirrels.

"White trash with too much responsibility," Lawrence says, comparing the characters, a mischievous grin on her face.

"My publicist doesn't like it when I say that."

While Lawrence was a fan of the book series, she still had hesitations about taking the role — and was even close to turning it down outright.

"It was so big. I love my life, and there's not a lot of times in a person's life where a yes or no decision can change your life forever and it will never, no matter what, go back to the way it was before. And that was terrifying to me," she admits.

"Even from a professional standpoint, I wanted to continue to make small passion projects that I love and I still want people to be able to lose themselves in my characters. I don't want people to watch something and go, 'Oh yeah, look at what Katniss is doing. Oh, Katniss is wearing a dress.' I didn't want that, but I realized that all of the no's just had to do with me being scared.

"I didn't want to miss out on something just because I was scared."

It's no secret that many are looking to the Hunger Games as the new young adult mega-franchise, what with Twilight tying up its prolonged victory lap later this year.

And parallels have already been drawn between Lawrence and Twilight lead Kristen Stewart, an indie actress whose life was transformed by her sudden blockbuster success. But Lawrence is surprisingly immune to the hype that's been built up — even with clocks counting the days until the release on billboards around Los Angeles.

"I kind of feel like an

Identity loss

"I don't want people to watch something and go 'Oh yeah, look at what Katniss is doing. Oh, Katniss is wearing a dress.'"

The Hunger Games star Jennifer Lawrence talking about her fear of taking on the major role of Katniss Everdeen in the franchise.

idiot because I haven't even thought about it," she says. "Everybody is like, 'The movie is coming out!' And I'm like, 'Yup.' I'm going to look back at myself five years from now and be like, 'You were an idiot. You had no idea what was about to happen.' I just feel this calm because there is nothing I can do."

"It's kind of like when you say something and that quote is being written — it's kind of like you immediately go into this calm of like, 'Well, there is nothing I can do now!'"

For the role of The Hunger Games heroine Katniss Everdeen, Jennifer Lawrence had to master archery. HANDOUT

Stars relish learning hand-to-hand combat

Training. The Hunger Games kids have a list of new skills to add to their resumes

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The young Tributes of the Hunger Games engage in some elaborate combat during their tour-namment, which meant more than the usual training for the teenage actors portraying them. And as Jennifer Lawrence had to become proficient with a bow to play archery savant Katniss, each actor had to get to know the weapon of choice of their respective character. "I did a lot of knife-throwing and I actually learned how to throw knives, which was amazing," says Isabelle Fuhrman, who plays menacing District 2 tribute Clove.

The knife-throwing turned out to be something of a revelation for the young actress. "This is going to sound weird, but it's very beautiful, being able to say, 'Yeah, I can throw knives,'" she admits. "It was really hard for me to learn how to do it, and so I definitely want to keep up with it."

Fuhrman got a bit carried away with her new skills, according to co-star Amanda Stenberg. "We'd be like, 'Hey Isabelle, want to have a sleepover?' And she'd [be flipping around a butterfly knife] like, 'Oh, sure,'" says Stenberg.

While prep involved hand-to-hand combat and sword training for Alexander Ludwig, who plays hulking District 1 tribute Cato, the hardest part was ditching the bulk he packed on for the role. "I'm still trying to go back to my normal size," Ludwig says. "It's way harder to lose weight than to put it on. I have so much more sympathy for fat people."

The Hunger Games kids received plenty of combat training. HANDOUT

Elizabeth Banks. Talks about playing perpetually positive Effie Trinket

It's often more fun to play the bad guy, and while Effie Trinket isn't the baddest of the bad in the Hunger Games, she's certainly not helping. Unrecognizable behind thick makeup and some ridiculous hair and hats, Elizabeth Banks has a field day as Trinket, the plucky villainess prepping her young charges (Jennifer Lawrence and Josh Hutcherson) for battle.

There's more to Effie than just being a pink-haired villain. As a career woman, she doesn't have the best gig. No, District 12 is terrible. To me, Effie drank the Kool-Aid. She's on board because she's in the one per cent and she doesn't want to give that up. I think she thinks, "Revolution would be bad. People will die and I might lose my cupcakes." She's not one for change. She likes the status quo. I think she shows up in District 12 disgusted, thinks that it's dirty, wants to go home as fast as possible. I think of PR people and stylists I've worked with who go, "Well, I'll make the best of a bad situation," you know? And I think that's Effie. The main thing about Effie is she's super-selfish. It's all about her. "How does this reflect on me? How's this going to affect my life?" It's great to have a winner in the Games, but it's bad to have a winner who pisses off President Snow.

But she's also thrilled to show off the finer things in life to the kids.

I think Effie's main thing is she's ultimately a very optimistic and effervescent, theatrical person. That's why she has the job that she has, because she's spinning the job she has positively all the time. They're most likely going to die, and she's seen a lot of kids die. So in her mind it's like, "You won a lottery ticket. We're all going to die, but you're going to go out famous, with a big bang!" That's Effie's attitude about these kids. They're almost definitely going to die, she's pretty sure of it. But they just won a ticket to a great reality show.

With big stars missing, the show must go on

Music. Drake, Bublé not coming to Juno Awards, while Bieber unlikely to make it

Drake and Michael Bublé have a combined seven nominations heading into next month's Juno Awards, but neither Canadian star will be able to attend the show in Ottawa.

Drake — who hosted the show last year and is tied for the lead with four nods including album and artist of the year — has a performance scheduled in Manchester the same night as the April 1 gala, while Bublé is set to perform in Brazil.

But Melanie Berry, head of the organization that runs the Juno Awards, said the absence of those stars wouldn't hurt the show.

"I don't see it as a blow," said Berry, president of the Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, in a telephone interview Wednesday.

"We've got a star-studded lineup and we've got some amazing acts. We have international superstars — you can only expect them to be on the road. We have to share them, we can't have them every year.

"So you know, we're happy when they're here."

Berry also pointed out that of the 162 people nominated in the Junos' 41 categories, 114 are expected to attend the show — roughly 70 per cent of nominees.

But another Canadian's potential absence still looms large.

Eighteen-year-old teen-pop sensation Justin Bieber — nominated for two Junos — is not among the confirmed guests for the show, and while Berry says it's not a "100 per cent" certainty that the Stratford, Ont., native will skip the Junos, organizers aren't counting on his presence.

"He's had a long year (and) I know the Kids' Choice Awards are the night before us," Berry said.

CMW 2012: A Preview

SOUND CHECK

scene@metronews.ca

In a basement office somewhere in Mississauga, Ont., a guy named Cameron is losing what remains of his sanity. He's the guy in charge of booking all the bands who want to play Canadian Music Week (CMW) in Toronto next week.

The last I heard — and the number has surely gone up since then — he was dealing with 922 artists from 40 countries, places as far away as Mongolia and Singapore. Somehow, all those acts have to get their sets in between next Wednesday and Sunday at five dozen venues around the city. Poor Cameron.

Many dozens of acts will be coming straight from SXSW, an only slightly more massive festival going on now in Austin, Texas. The advantage the Texans have, though, is that their climate allows them to stage many events outdoors. CMW has no such luxury.

Playing festivals like these are stressful on the bands, too. Can we afford the trip? Where do we stay? Are we booked in the right venue? How do we know people will come out and see us? How do we get the right industry people to pay attention? And what do you mean we get the 2 a.m. clean-up slot?

Yet in what's increasingly becoming a post-CD world, events like CMW grow ever more important as playing live becomes the primary way of connecting with fans and industry folk. The biggest thing fans have to complain about is the ridiculous amount of choice in what to see and hear. Is it best to choose a venue and camp out there for the entire night? Or should you take a chance on a club crawl that might see you arrive too late to get in to see the band you want? Can we still get into the Independent Music Awards on Saturday night? And what do we do about that I Mother Earth reunion?

It'll be over soon enough, though. That'll give everyone a few months to prep for NXNE in June, which also brings hundreds of bands through Toronto. And once that's done, it's off to Sled Island in Calgary. And let's not forget about the CMJ Music Marathon in NYC in October. Sleep when you're dead, I say.

For more on Slacker Canadian Music Week and the dizzying array of events (including podcasts and a streaming radio station playing artists from the festival), go to cmw.net.

Canadian producer can't wait for fans at home to get Justified

Midwest. Timothy Olyphant stars in an acclaimed western that premieres this Sunday on Showcase Justified is one of those talked about TV shows that Canadians may have heard of but probably haven't seen.

That's about to change. Starting Sunday at 10 p.m. ET, the contemporary western comes to the specialty channel Showcase.

The series, which stars Emmy-nominated Timothy Olyphant as deputy U.S. Marshal Raylan Givens, has been critically acclaimed since it premiered in March 2010 on its originating U.S. cable network, FX. Based on characters created by bestselling novelist Elmore Leonard (Get Shorty, 3:10 to Yuma), the series is executive produced by Canadian-born showrunner Graham Yost (Speed, Boomtown).

Season 3 is currently available in Canada but on Super Channel, a premium cable service with a much smaller subscription base than Showcase. Adding to the confusion is the fact that Rogers launched FX Canada last year but wasn't able to corral Justified, distributed internationally by Sony Pictures Television.

Yost, now an American citizen who still has family in British Columbia (his father Elwy, once the face of TV Ontario, died there last year), told TV critics gathered in Pasadena in January that he

What makes a hero?

"Since Homer (not Simpson but the ancient Greek writer) the hero is not always the biggest, the strongest, the fastest — not even the smartest — it's the guy who is clever."

Showrunner Graham Yost on the one trait he says basically all heroes have shared through the ages.

knew the series had found its feet in the first season when the writers were satisfied they were creating "an Elmore Leonard world every week."

Leonard, also an executive producer on the series, agreed.

"It's a terrific show," says the 86-year-old author, who's not always happy with other film and TV adaptations of his work. He singles out The Big Bounce as an especially excruciating example.

"I don't think anybody in the picture knew what it was about," he told critics.

Justified, on the other hand, gets it right.

"I love all of the writing, and I'm amazed sometimes that they've got the characters better than I put them on paper."

Both Yost and Olyphant are happy that Leonard is still putting the character of Raylan Givens on paper. While a short story was the original inspiration, Olyphant urged Leonard to write a new novel and he did, simply titled Raylan.

The baddest man on TV: Timothy Olyphant stars as U.S. Marshal Raylan Givens in the highly lauded show Justified. HANDOUT

The novel breaks out into three new stories, with the Michigan-based author basically giving Yost and his Justified writing team the go-ahead to "just hang this book up and strip it for parts."

Yost says he pretty much took that advice, suggesting Leonard's books are very cinematic to begin with. When he was writing the original pilot for the series, and would get stuck on what Raylan would say next, he would often find a line in Leonard's original short story Fire in the Hole. One of his favourite scenes from the pilot, he says, "I basically just retyped."

The character has a complicated past and sometimes goes outside the law to bring bad guys to justice. Justified isn't just the title of the series, it is pretty much the Louisiana marshal's modus operandi.

That makes him like a lot of characters in TV dramas of the past decade or so, where the line between protagonist and antagonist has been blurred — if not erased. Acclaimed shows such as Breaking Bad and Dexter have introduced characters who seem heroic at times even though they are essentially drug dealers and serial killers.

"I think Raylan has a little bit of the outlaw in him," says Yost. "He has these demons, he has this family history that lets him understand criminals perhaps better than other marshals would, but that is also a bit of a burden. So he's not just a pure-as-the-driven-snow hero." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mad Men Mania. TV show returns with double episode Sunday

In retrospect, the bombshell with which Mad Men concluded last season was inevitable.

With a busted marriage behind him and a romance in high gear with a self-assured psychologist, Don Draper pulled a fast one in the finale, proposing to his twentysomething secretary just days after they first slept together.

This was classic Don. He was seizing what appeared to be a quick fix — the devotion of a sexy younger woman he said "got" him — after he had spent a season lonely and lost, in a tailspin. He needed the recovery, the structure, the renewed sense of identity she seemed able to provide. And (though only time will tell for sure about this) maybe Don, facing middle age, felt the need to illustrate that durable truism: There's no fool like an old fool.

"He's smiling like a fool, like he's the first man who ever married his secretary," scoffed one of his ad-agency colleagues in the finale, which was set in October 1965 and aired what seems almost that long ago.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jon Hamm, who plays Don Draper, glances at photographers on his way to a panel discussion about the 2012 season. CHRIS PIZZELLO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spoiler alert!

Below are a few tiny spoilers for fans who can't wait for the premiere on Sunday, March 25 at 9 p.m. EDT on AMC.

- Don (series star Jon Hamm) seems still happy with Megan (Jessica Pare). And why not? His bride is an ooh-lah-lah French-Canadian with style.
- Pete (Vincent Kartheiser) has a new home and a baby with his wife, Trudy, but, as usual, he feels under-valued at the office.
- Joan (Christina Hendricks) is on leave from the agency with her new baby, as she holds on to the secret that the father isn't Greg, her military-surgeon husband now in Vietnam, but instead Roger (John Slattery), the gin-soaked agency partner.
- Peggy (Elisabeth Moss) seems to have lost her creative mojo, at least with one client, Heinz that slams her ideas in a meeting.

Polar bears have love lives, too

Discovery series.

Frozen Planet is anything but slow-moving. Cameras catch all the action of arctic animals as they mate, hunt and play

"The best stories on our planet are natural ones," says Alastair Fothergill. But you'd expect him to say that. For two decades with the BBC, Fothergill has produced wildlife documentary series including Planet Earth, Blue Planet and, back in 1993, Life in the Freezer, which explored Antarctica in all its frigid wonder.

Now he's executive producer of Frozen Planet, a Discovery Channel/BBC co-production that takes a fresh look at Antarctica as well as its north-end counterpart, the Arctic, in seven gorgeous episodes premiering Sunday with the first two hours at 8 p.m. EDT on Discovery. And while you may not be ready to dismiss filmdom's stars and screenplay writers as unnecessary, Frozen Planet makes a strong case that Nature — captured in the wild — can equal Hollywood for epic sweep and drama.

Comedy, too. In Sunday's second hour, male penguins by the hundreds of thousands anticipate the spring return of the females, for whose favour each male must compete by building a swankier nest than his rivals. In a delightful sequence, a painstaking penguin gathers stones one by one, only to have them filched, one after another, by a scheming neighbour whenever the hapless suitor's back is turned. These performers, with their Chaplin-esque gait and impeccable timing, would have been right at home in a 1920s two-reeler.

There's also bittersweet romance on Frozen Planet. Nature's ultimate loner, a 1,400-pound male polar bear, has lumbered across the ice all winter in search of a mate come spring. Picking up her scent from 10 miles away, he finds her, after which they share a tender interlude.

Melting hearts

"The structure of our series," says Fothergill, "is to show the places. Then we engage in the animals' drama and lives."

- Protection. Hearing that, series producer Vanessa Berlowitz quotes the late ecologist-documentary superstar Jacques Cousteau, who famously noted, "We only protect what we love."

- Motivation. "Our goal," says Berlowitz, "is to do films that make people fall in love with the animals and places. What we want is for people to love them."

Then, just two weeks later, their brief encounter ends as they are fated to part.

Plus, there are thrilling, life-or-death confrontations in the series. Three-ton elephant seals brawl over females. A pack of 25 wolves brings down a huge bison. A wide-eyed Weddell seal falls prey to hungry orca whales

Polar bears walk on ice floes during the filming of Frozen Planet, a seven-part series premiering with the first two hours Sunday, at 8 p.m. EDT on Discovery, JASON ROBERTS/Discovery Channel/BBC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS that, working as a team, can stir up giant waves to wash these frantic seals from the refuge of their ice floes.

And talk about "special effects"! An unprecedented time-lapse shot underwater records the growth of a brinicle — an ice stalactite progressing downward toward the seabed — killing everything its frozen plume touches. This otherworldly sight is as eerie and magical as a CGI effect from a sci-fi film. But it's real.

"That's the thing about the natural world: It gives you amazing natural drama," says

Vanessa Berlowitz, Frozen Planet series producer. "It looks like it's scripted, but we don't fake anything. Everything that we film is a complete portrayal of reality. And the audience thinks, 'Wow, they did that without trained animals!'"

Lindsay 'extremely upset' over alleged hit and run

Lindsay Lohan insists the latest claims that she struck a man with her Porsche and then fled the scene are completely false, according to Radar Online.

"Lindsay is adamant that she absolutely didn't hit anyone while she was driving. Lindsay is extremely upset that there would be speculation she would ditch the scene of a potential crime scene," a source says.

"She is days away from being taken off formal probation. Would it make sense for Lindsay to flee the scene with tons of paparazzi? No, she wouldn't have done that if there was a remote possibility she had hit someone."

Jennifer and Justin sitting in a tree, k-i-s-s-i-n-g, first comes love, then comes baby?

Jennifer Aniston and Justin Theroux have reportedly been telling friends that they're ready to start a family, according to Life & Style Weekly.

And if that isn't enough to stoke pregnancy rumors, Aniston was reportedly eschewing booze during some Academy Awards festivities.

"I saw Jen Oscar week, and she couldn't stop smiling," a source says.

"She was actually less lean and less muscular than I had expected her to be — her body looked softer. In the dress she wore, it really did look like she had a baby bump."

Eva steps up her girlfriend game and looks after Ryan's beloved dog

Eva Mendes has reportedly been looking for a way to prove to Ryan Gosling that she's serious about their relationship, and she may have found it.

Mendes is taking care of Gosling's dog, George, while the actor is filming in Thailand, according to Us Weekly.

"He was going to have his friends watch George, but changed his mind at the last minute," a source says.

"That's a huge deal to him. He wouldn't leave that dog with just anyone."

Jermaine Jones: You're fired!

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Here's the thing: You can get away with a few little white lies on your resumé if you're applying to, say, a remote Applebee's in some god-forsaken strip mall off the Interstate.

But when you are auditioning for one of the most powerful brands in the entire universe, a brand that has billions at their disposal to make sure nothing happens to tarnish their reputation, you should probably be upfront with anything that might come bite you on the butt later.

It seems like American Idol contestant Jermaine Jones didn't get this memo.

The top 12 finalist was disqualified from the show after the powers-that-be learned he'd kept his criminal background under wraps, having four outstanding arrest warrants in his home state of New Jersey and a history of using multiple fake names with cops.

And so executive producers Nigel Lythgoe and Ken Warwick fired him on national TV Wednesday night, Donald Trump style.

However, the drama leading up to the evening (blogs have been buzzing with the Jones news since The Smoking Gun uncovered the news) did nothing to boost the show's ratings.

In fact, it was down five per cent from last week.

Seacrest weighs in:

"With the cooperation of law enforcement, we discovered information that left us with no choice but to eliminate one of our own from the competition. When you're doing a live show, anything can happen."

Russell Brand

Is Russel Brand working through some rage issues?

New Orleans police have issued a warrant for Russell Brand in connection to an earlier incident during which Brand reportedly hurled a paparazzo's iPhone into an office window, according to TMZ.

The warrant is for simple criminal damage to property, a misdemeanor. The website previously reported that immediately following the incident Monday, reps for Brand contacted the law office involved and said Brand would pay for the damage to the window.

And while Brand has made no official comment on the incident, he did make light of it on Twitter, posting, "Since Steve Jobs died I cannot bear to see anyone use an iPhone irreverently, what I did was a tribute to his memory."

Charlize Theron adds a new role to her amazing resumé: Mother

Charlize Theron has become a mother, having adopted a baby, her rep confirms to People magazine.

"She is the proud mom of a healthy baby boy named Jackson," her rep says, though further details on the adoption weren't forthcoming.

A source close to the Oscar-winning actress says Theron "has been trying to adopt a baby for a long time."

Theron, who is currently single, split from boyfriend Stuart Townsend after nine years together.

"Charlize's mom [Gerda] has been helping out with the baby," the source says. "She seems so happy and will be a great mom."

Liquid Assets

A strong tradition of Irish sippers

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.ca

For such a wee piece of geography, Ireland certainly holds its own when it comes to the creation of classic booze. Think Bailey's Irish Cream liqueur, Jameson Irish whisky and, the true liquid personality of Ireland, Guinness Stout.

Of course, there are other Irish beverages on the shelves at your liquor store that deserve equal attention — especially with tomorrow being Saint Patrick's Day.

When I was on the Emerald Isle a few years ago, I got a chance to head to Northern Ireland and visit The Old Bushmills Distillery: a producer of wonderful triple distilled whiskies since 1608 (which makes it the world's oldest licensed spirit maker).

Every drop that goes by the name Bushmills is created there and the hand-made attention to detail comes across in every filled glass — one of which you get to choose at the end of the tour.

My pick was the Bushmills 10 Year Old Single Malt Irish Whiskey ($39.95 - $48.99). Made with 100 per cent malted barley and aged in barrels that once housed American bourbon, it's a rich, complex whiskey with warm honey overtones and a long, palate-massaging finish. Sláinte.

A meal to make St. Paddy proud

Dublin Coddle. Try this healthier version of the one-dish meal considered to be one of Ireland's most delicious national dishes

Traditionally made with both bacon and sausage to flavour a base of potatoes and onions, Dublin coddle is an insanely good one-dish meal. And it would be a great choice for St. Patrick's Day. Assuming, that is, it can be worked into a healthy diet.

Start by opting for leaner meats that still pack tons of flavour, including Canadian bacon, which actually is closer than American bacon to rash-ers, the variety of pork used in Irish cooking.

Canadian bacon and Irish rashers are made from the back loin of the pig rather than the fattier pork belly used for American-style bacon.

For the sausage, switch to chicken sausage, which is high in flavour, and generally has far less fat and calories than traditional sausage.

The herbs and seasonings already serve the meal well, so don't mess around with those. But add a few extra vegetable because, hey, we could all use a few extra servings of those.

And for a final punch of flavour, add apples and apple cider.

1 In a large Dutch oven over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the Canadian bacon and sauté until lightly browned, 3 to 4 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer the bacon to a small bowl.

2 Add the sausage to the pan and brown the slices on both sides, about 3 to 4 minutes per side. Transfer the sausage to the bowl of bacon. Add the onions and garlic to the pan, then sauté for 7 to 8 minutes, or until they begin to brown. Stir in the sage, thyme and parsley.

3 Add the russet and sweet potatoes, carrots, apples and reserved meat. Pour the apple cider and chicken stock over everything. Cover and set over medium-low heat. Cook until the vegetables and potatoes are very tender, about 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Season with salt and pepper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 30 ml (2 tbsp) canola oil
- 3/4 cup (6 oz) Canadian bacon, chopped
- 1 1/4 cups (10 oz) chicken sausages, sliced into 2.5 cm (1-inch)-thick diagonal slices
- 2 large yellow onions, sliced
- 3 cloves garlic, chopped
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) each chopped fresh sage and thyme
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) chopped parsley
- 2 large russet potatoes, cut into thick slices
- 1 large sweet potato, cut into thick slices
- 2 carrots and 2 apples, cut into 2.5 cm (1-inch) chunks
- 250 ml (1 cup) apple cider
- 250 ml (1 cup) chicken stock
- Salt and black pepper

Irish Lamb Stew. Keep it traditional

Lamb and potatoes are a hearty springtime meal that is perfect served with some Irish soda bread and a crisp salad to round out your dinner.

1 Sprinkle lamb with salt and pepper.

2 In a large Dutch oven or heavy-bottomed pan heat oil over medium-high heat; working in batches, add lamb to pan and sear on all sides, making sure not to overcrowd pan. As each batch is browned, use a slotted spoon or tongs to transfer it to a plate.

3 Add leeks, onions, carrots, parsnips, broth, bay leaves and thyme to pan with browned lamb. Bring mixture to a simmer; cover and cook for 1 hour. Add potatoes and cook for about 30 minutes or until potatoes and lamb are tender when pierced with a fork.

4 Remove bay leaves and thyme stems. Stir in parsley and season with additional salt and black pepper, if needed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ ADAPTED BY EMILY RICHARDS (PROFESSIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR, TV CELEBRITY CHEF. FOR MORE, VISIT EMILYRICHARDSOOKS.CA)

Ingredients

- 1 kg (2 lb) lamb stew meat, cut in 4-cm (1 1/2-inch) pieces
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) each salt and fresh black pepper
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 2 leeks, white parts only, sliced
- 2 onions, chopped
- 500 g (1 lb) each carrots and parsnips, cut into 4-cm (1 1/2 inch) pieces
- 1 L (4 cups) vegetable broth
- 3 bay leaves and 3 leaves fresh thyme
- 750 g (1 1/2 lb) new potatoes
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) fresh parsley

Fun Facts

Get to know St. Patrick

• St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, was not Irish but Welsh. When he was about 16, he was captured by Irish raiders and taken to Ireland as a slave. After escaping, he went home and entered the church but returned to Ireland as an ordained bishop.

• St. Patrick's Day is observed March 17 because it is believed that he died on March 17 in the year 461 AD.

• The phrase "drowning the shamrock" is from a custom of floating a shamrock on top of whiskey before drinking it.

• About 10 per cent of Canadians, or more than three million people, are of Irish descent. The population of Ireland is 4.1 million.

Flames drop Coyotes to gain ground in playoff chase

NHL. Victory puts Calgary a single point behind both Phoenix and Colorado

Jarome Iginla scored the game-winning goal in the second period to lead the Calgary Flames to a 4-1 win over the Phoenix Coyotes on Thursday.

Iginla has now scored in six straight games and has eight goals and six assists during his eight-game point streak, all in the month of March.

Sven Baertschi, Matt Stajan and Alex Tanguay also scored for the Flames (34-25-12), who have reeled off five straight wins to pull within one point of the seventh-place Coyotes (35-26-11) and eighth-place Colorado Avalanche (38-30-5) in the Western Conference standings.

Oliver Ekman-Larsson scored for the Coyotes, who were coming off a 5-4 win in Vancouver over the Canucks one night earlier.

Miikka Kiprusoff made 27 saves for Calgary to record his 33rd win of the season. Mike Smith stopped 15 shots for Phoenix.

Baertschi, who joined the Flames on March 7 on an emergency-recall basis from the Western Hockey League's Portland Winterhawks, has scored goals in three straight games.

Stajan, who was elevated to the top line with Iginla and Alex Tanguay during Calgary's recent rash of injuries, has scored three times in the past four games and has points (three goals, three assists) in five straight.

Before many of the 19,829 fans at the Saddledome could get to their seats, Baertschi scored to give the Flames an early 1-0 lead. Forechecking hard in the Phoenix zone, Baertschi intercepted an errant pass in front of the net by Coyotes defenceman Keith Yandle and quickly backhanded a shot over Smith's glove.

Later in the opening frame, Smith made a nice glove save to stop a slap shot off the stick of Blake Comeau before sliding across his crease to get in front of a heavy shot from the point by Calgary defenceman Anton Babchuk.

At the other end of the ice, Kiprusoff turned aside a slap shot by Ray Whitney before stretching across his crease to deny Ekman-Larsson from knocking in the rebound.

Iginla put the Flames up 2-0 just past the five-minute mark of the second when he took a long stretch pass from Mark Giordano and skated into the Phoenix zone before wiring a snap shot to the top corner past Smith.

Ekman-Larsson pulled the Coyotes to within a goal at 17:37 of the middle frame when he took a pass from Whitney and roofed a shot over a sprawling Kiprusoff.

Just 33 seconds later, Stajan put the Flames back up by a pair when he drove hard to the net and redirected a pass from Cory Sarich across the goal-line to make it 3-1.

One minute into the third period, Kiprusoff made a save to thwart Whitney on a break-away attempt, then stopped a long shot from the NHL veteran a short time later.

The Coyotes recorded the first 13 shots on net in the final period before Jokinen finally directed a puck past Smith just past the 12-minute mark while the Flames were on a power play.

Calgary then added an insurance goal when Curtis Glen-cross made some nice moves in the offensive zone to set up Tanguay for a short-handed marker. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ryan Nugent-Hopkins had a goal and an assist on Wednesday as Edmonton defeated Columbus 3-0. Nugent-Hopkins has 43 points in 50 games as a rookie. Sven Baertschi, Calgary's 2011 first-round pick, has three goals in his first four NHL games. Curtis Glen-cross, coming off a seven-game goal streak, has a career-high 25 goals this season.

Penguins. Crosby fits right in as Penguins win in New York

Sidney Crosby was on the ice for three of Pittsburgh's five goals, and defenceman Kris Letang was out there for all of them.

The Penguins are suddenly the picture of health, and the NHL's hottest team is making the Eastern Conference playoff race a fight to the finish.

Crosby returned from a 40-game absence caused by concussion symptoms, and Letang rejoined the lineup after missing the past five because of the same ailment. That gave the Penguins their most complete lineup in months, and Pittsburgh responded with a thorough 5-2 victory over the East-leading New York Rangers on Thursday night.

straight, including two wins over the Rangers in that spurt, and now trail New York by four points. Pittsburgh has 13 games left, compared to 12 for the Rangers.

Crosby was hoping he wouldn't mess up any chemistry created by his teammates while he was out.

Under control

"I was pretty excited last time. I was excited this time too, but I didn't want to get caught doing too much."

Sidney Crosby on his second return from injury this season

"I didn't want to be that guy," the 24-year-old centre said. "I obviously knew we were playing really well. There was a little bit of adjustment, playing wing, things like that. I thought everyone played great, and I'm happy we got the win."

Crosby played for the first time since he was forced to the sidelines on Dec. 5 and got on the score sheet with an assist.

"I think he played a great game," said Matt Cooke, who scored two goals while playing on a new third line with Crosby. "He draws so much attention when he is on the ice. People are worried about how good he is. That makes the players on the ice with him that much better."

Crosby joined Cooke and Tyler Kennedy on a line. Kennedy had two assists and NHL points leader Evgeni Malkin added a goal for the Penguins, who haven't lost since Feb. 19 at Buffalo.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April

20. Do something different today, something that disrupts your normal routine. It's time to shake things up.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Even if you're successful, there's always something better you can aim for. The planets urge you to raise your sights, redouble your efforts.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

You may have to shout if you want to be heard today, but you must not allow yourself to get emotional, especially at work.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Do the right thing today. Act on principle even if it means you lose out financially. It will balance out.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. According to the planets, you will be dealing with some very important people over the next few days.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

You need to narrow your focus a bit. You need to hone in on what is truly important. Cut out what wastes time.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

Do you stick with what you know and trust or do you risk everything and attempt something new and exciting? Only you can decide.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

Think carefully before you decide to end a relationship of some kind. Is the situation really so serious that you can't patch things up?

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec.

21. The pace of life will increase dramatically over the next few days. Are you ready? Get help if need be.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan.

20. Your main task today is to cut out of your life a project or pursuit that no longer motivates you.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18.

Some of the people you meet today will be rather aggressive and you need to make sure that you don't get aggressive in return.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

Someone's been a bit critical of your performance, but if you think about what they have said, you will have to admit they are right. SALLY BROMPTON
